

HARRY KNIGHT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

One Man Injured in Great Race at Indianapolis, Well Known Here.

WAS IN SEYMOUR LAST FALL

And Spent Several Days at Elder Harley Jackson's.—Injuries Not Dangerous.

Harry Knight, one of the drivers injured in the auto races at Indianapolis Tuesday has many acquaintances in Seymour, he having visited this city frequently. He is a friend of Elder Harley Jackson. The latter first knew him at Bedford and later became better acquainted with him when Knight was chauffeur for Col. Russell Harrison. He came to Seymour a number of times with Col. Harrison.

Last fall Knight was here for several days with a Cole 30, he being an agent for the machine. During his stay in the city, he stopped with Elder Jackson and made the acquaintance of many local people and was well liked.

His injuries Tuesday were not of a serious character, he being only bruised and shaken up badly. The accident in which he figured was one of the sensational incidents of the day and the injuries he received and the damage done his machine, were sufficient to retire him from the race. Up to the time of the accident he had been driving a splendid race and had gone for 165 miles without a stop.

H. G. Deupree in a word picture of the thrilling accident in The Indianapolis Star said:

Nerve-racking and breath-catching events occurred in front of the main grand stand, just south of the tape a few feet, a little after 2 o'clock. The grind of the race had worn its rut in the mental and bodily strength of both drivers and spectators, and the mix-up of four cars, all in the twinkling of an eye, aroused many torpid persons within vision range.

Jagersberger in Case 8 was "beating it" down the stretch. A steering knuckle went bad. The car "acted up," took the bits of wind in its mouth, being beyond the driver's control, and lurched into the cement wall along the repair pits.

C. L. Anderson, 25 years old, of Cleveland, O., mechanic with Jagersberger, either fell out or jumped from his car. He says he fell, but some spectators believed he was so frightened that he jumped, as his movements indicated.

Any way he was lying half-conscious on the oil-smeared paved course when Harry Knight, in Westcott 7, bore down on him at seventy-five miles an hour. Knight later said he grew suddenly sick when the smoke cleared enough to show him the form of an unknown rival stretched in his path. Humanity's better self was quicker than reason and more compelling than greed for gain, and Knight, without a fraction of a second's time to measure his course, turned suddenly to the side and missed the mechanic. His car skidded and crashed into Herbert Lytle's Apperson 35, which was standing by the repair pit. Lytle had just got out and was safely behind the cement wall or he may have been killed, too, without warning or time to escape.

The Westcott, still plowing ahead with Knight bravely applying brakes and trying to stop, struck Eddie Hearne's Fiat (18) and carried both Fiat and Apperson with it into a heap at the south end of the repair pits.

Condition Serious.

Reports from Indianapolis today are that Harry Knight's injuries are much more serious than at first reported. The News this afternoon says:

"The condition of Harry Knight, the Indianapolis boy, who was injured in the smashup near the judges' stand, is said to be extremely serious. When Knight was taken away in an ambulance it was thought he was only bruised and shaken. A surgical examination by Dr. Frank R. Allen, in charge of the medical corps at the speedway showed that Knight was badly injured about the head. There are grave fears as to his recovery. However, at the hospital, today, the condition of Knight was said to show a slight improvement."

ROBBERY CHARGED.

Two Seymour Men Alleged to Have Stolen $20 From Showman.

The police of the city are all scouring the city and country this afternoon for Perry Coleman, colored and Tip Franklin, wanted on a charge of robbing Willie Dye, an employee of the carnival company, of $20. The robbery, it is claimed, occurred in a box car near the Southeastern station about 1 o'clock. According to the story given the officers Dye and three local men had met at the car and one of the latter, Leonard Donnell was sent to a saloon for a bucket of refreshments. When he returned he was struck in the face by one of the other Seymour men and $20 was taken from Dye's pocket.

The latter says the two men who it is alleged were Coleman and Franklin, fled, going south.

The $20 was noticed by the others when Dye took his money from his pocket to pay for the beer.

Late this afternoon Coleman and Franklin surrendered to the officers and were locked up. They claim they are not guilty of the robbery.

ONLY A SMALL CORNER

In Northeast Part of the Park Will be Needed for the Switch.

The engineer for the Southeastern has not yet been here to stake off the ground to be needed in the northeast corner of the park for the switch which will be run down Bill street to the Seymour Manufacturing Company's plant. But from a previous survey and blue print made, it is known that the corner to be cut off will not be as large as the section now cut off by the switch on the northwest corner. The northeast corner will as previously stated, be sold to the Seymour Improvement Company and the track across the northwest corner of the park and along Broadway will be taken up. The new switch will enter the park ground about 100 feet west of Bill street and will come out on Bill about 160 feet south of the corner.

UNDER ROAD LAW

Brick Streets at Princeton Are Being Built By Ewing Shields.

Ewing Shields who has a contract for three miles of brick streets at Princeton expects to complete the work in about four weeks. They are being built under the two-mile road law. Although the streets being improved are all within the city limits, they are being paid for by the county. Following the defeat of the proposed improvements of several streets in Seymour some time ago, there was considerable talk that some of the property owners would try to secure the improvement of the streets under the law mentioned above.

Petitions were prepared for circulation but the matter was finally dropped, some of the interested owners having discovered provisions in the law which they feared might cause the expense to be made greater for them than would be the case if the improvements was made under the regular street improvement law.

Mr. Prewitt, who has been superintending the work on the Princeton contract, says he has heard no objections there because the improvements were made under the road law. Another mile and a half of streets there will probably be ordered improved under the same law.

THE EXERCISES OF MEMORIAL DAY

Address Delivered at Majestic Theatre Tuesday Afternoon By Rev. Louis King.

SERVICES AT THE CEMETERY

Conducted By the Grand Army and The Women's Relief Corps.—Graves Decorated.

Business in Seymour practically came to a standstill at noon Tuesday and many of the business houses remained closed the remainder of the day.

Although some did not join in the Memorial Day exercises but spent the afternoon in other ways, a large percent of the citizens remembered that the day is sacred to the soldier dead and joined in paying tribute to the memory of the departed heroes.

At 1:30 the Grand Army and Women's Relief Corps met at the Post hall and marched to the Majestic theatre where the first exercises of the day were held and where a large number of the citizens had assembled. W. J. Durham, commander of the Post, presided. Prayer was offered by Rev. F. M. Huckleberry. The high school chorus under the direction of Prof. H. C. Gast, sang two numbers and there was a solo by Jack Howard. Rev. Louis King of Columbus, a veteran of the 27th Indiana delivered a splendid address. He was formerly recruiting officer for this district, having recently been succeeded by W. J. Durham.

After the exercises at the theatre the veterans fell in line for the march to the cemetery. Those who were too feeble for the march and the members of the W. R. C. rode to the cemetery. The parade was headed by the Italian band from the Cosmopolitan Shows, the musicians having volunteered their services for the occasion.

The walk to the cemetery was a trying one for some of the veterans and it was predicted by several that this would be the last march of the kind the veterans would undertake.

The gathering of people at the cemetery was very large. The G. A. R. and W. R. C. proceeded to the grave of Hardin Hancock where the ritualistic services of the former were given. Later the W. R. C. held their ritualistic services at the grave of Mrs. Mary McGinnis.

After these exercises the graves of the soldiers were decorated. There are about 145 soldiers buried there. During the past year, but one member of the Post, Hardin Hancock, died.

Flowers were rather plentiful this year and as many of the graves besides those of soldiers were decorated by friends and relatives according to the custom that has grown up in recent years, the cemetery Tuesday evening was beautiful with the emblems of love and tributes of honor. Tuesday morning committees from the Post decorated the graves of the soldiers, about thirty-five in number, in the Redington, Montgomery and Ruddick cemeteries. Memorial services were held at many points in the county during the day. At Crothersville in the afternoon Attorney John M. Lewis of Seymour, delivered an address.

STEEL CARS

Are to be Repaired at Washington. Shops to be Enlarged.

Washington is considerably worked up over the prospect of a steel car department in the shops at Washington.

The Washington Democrat says: A high official at the shops gives out the information that about $5,000 worth of machinery has been ordered as a starter to help take care of the additional work to be done in the steel car department at the local B. & O. Southwestern shops. The first order for the machinery was sent in last week when A. P. Prendergast and C. W. Galloway were here from Cincinnati looking over the shops.

A new building will not be necessary to the start although later, as the capacity of the department is increased, one may be needed. Plans for the building of a tool house in which to keep the steel car employees' tools, are being made.

An official has given the information out that it is the plan sometime in the future, after the increase in the steel car department is running smoothly, to make the local shops a place for the manufacture of steel cars. This would necessitate the employment of a large number of men.

A force of about fifteen men are employed in the steel car department at the shops now and from seven to twelve repaired cars are turned out each month. The new plans call for a department large enough to turn out fifty cars a month, which means the employment of seventy-five or a hundred additional men to start with. According to the plans all steel cars used on that part of the road west of Parkersburg, West Virginia, are to be repaired here and one shop official estimated that when the local department is so equipped to do this work, 500 men will be employed.

"I would not be surprised," he continued, "that sometime in the future the officials of the road will see fit to consolidate the Chillicothe and Washington shops."

A few months ago the passenger car repair department at the Chillicothe shops was ordered removed to Washington, and now comes the move to equip the Washington shops with a statement that this movement may develop into the manufacture of steel cars.

There can no longer be any question but that the railway company is planning to greatly enlarge the local shops, where about 800 men are now employed.

Carnival Tonight.

The heavy rain late Tuesday afternoon flooded the show grounds on West Second street and as a consequence the Metropolitan Shows gave no entertainment last night. The grounds were roped off to prevent the people from tramping around in the mud and water. The sun today has dried the ground and all the shows will be open tonight. The Italian band gave its usual concert on the streets this afternoon.

Danger of Death.

Because of the excessive heat of the last few days, the state board of health expects the mortality figures for this month to be considerably higher than for the corresponding month of last year, when the weather was much cooler. The present hot spell came without any indication that it was to be so intense, and the board members say the people were not prepared for it.

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the board, says thousands of the people of the state will turn at once to ice water, ice tea and other iced water when the drinker is heated from exercise, Dr. Hurty says, is a dangerous practice, and likely to cause sudden death by its effects on the heart action. Advice from the board is to drink plenty of cool or cold water, but not to drink water that contains ice.

Funeral Today.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

NOTWITHSTANDING the much accelerated progress of civilization and enlightenment during the past century people continue to be thrilled by pomp and pageantry as they were in medieval times, or, for that matter, in the days of "the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome." Parades, processions, pageants of any formal kind, attract the avid attention of the average human. This same average human will stand for hours in a stifling crowd to get glimpses of a militia regiment marching or the Fourth Ward Healers' club in proud parade. There seems to be—there is—something in the human makeup that craves ceremonial scenes and the fanfare and hubbub of processional events.

This accounts for the determination of our oversea cousins, the British people,

George and Mary function. But it is on the outside of the hall of Westminster that the real sightseers will see and be seen. London has a matter of 6,000,000 and more, while hordes of visitors will be present from all the British Isles and colonies and from the American republic, which still has a large contingent of citizens who pine for royal pomp. All nations will be represented officially.

From each of Britain's far flung colonies will gather regiments and battalions and troops of soldiery, all in glittering panoply and grand array. India will send her Hindu princes and their dazzling suits, grotesquely garbed. Some of these Hindu potentates, by the way, have considerably more power over their people than has King George himself, though he is styled emperor of India. But some of the proudest of them will attend the crowning and make obeisance of a sort to the white overlord who benevolently rules them by letting them alone in the main.

Ten Days of Festivities.

For ten days—the festival of the coronation is programmed to last that long—the most populous city on earth will be more densely populated than ever before. For each of these ten days some ceremony of overwhelming solemnity or some scene of prodigious pomp has been prepared. The eyes of the world will be turned upon London, and everybody who can get there will be there, for the sightseeing will be worth while whether you believe in the king business or not.

Americans who are wealthy enough to pay the price began going over to England as early as three months ago to make sure of being on the spot when the big hour strikes. Others sent their representatives over to reserve rooms, apartments, houses and even palaces for the coronation period. Enormous sums have been paid by some of the rich Americans for the occupancy of London houses during June or for the coronation fortnight. It has been estimated that $25,000,000 for the coronation festival have been in steady progress. The matter of dress has been pre-eminent. An official style book defines the length of trains for peeresses and the patterns of coronets for the various ranks of noblemen who will be in attendance. Some time ago the earl marshal made public the description of robes required for the occasion. All last winter the trappers of the Hudson Bay company were busily engaged in finding furs for coronation use. London manufacturers bought up all the miniver fur that could be found, the supply being unequal to the demand for this material in the robes to be worn by the noblemen and noblewomen invited to the coronation.

Velvet Rows Determine Rank.

By a simple little arrangement a casual glance will be enough to determine the rank of peers attending the coronation, for counting the rows of miniver will determine whether the wearer is a baron, viscount, earl, marquis or duke, this being determined by the amount of miniver, as follows, in the official notice:

Baron.....Two rows
Viscount.....Two rows and a half
Earl.....Three rows
Marquis.....Three rows and a half
Duke.....Four rows

The mantles or robes to be worn over full court dress, uniform or regimentals.

The coronet of a baron to have on the circle or rim six silver balls at equal distances.

The coronet of a viscount to have on the circle sixteen silver balls.

The coronet of an earl to have on the circle eight silver balls raised upon points, with gold strawberry leaves between the points.

The coronet of a marquis to have on the circle four gold strawberry leaves and four silver balls alternately, the latter a little raised on points above the rim.

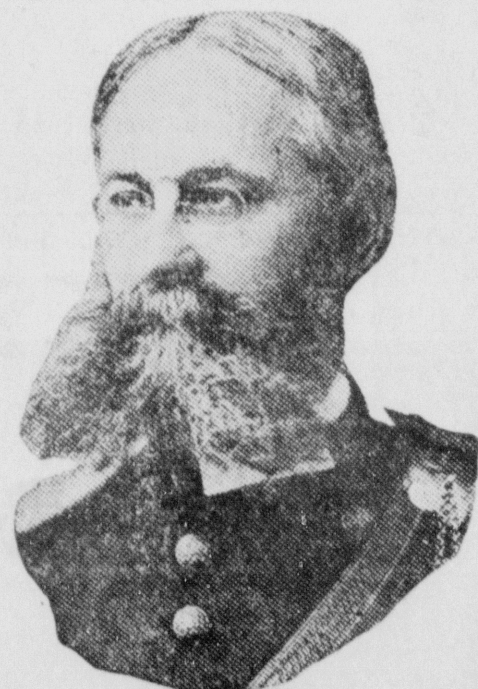

The coronet of a duke to have on the circle eight gold strawberry leaves.

The rank of the peeresses will be determined in much the same way as that of the peers, by rows of miniver and the coronet ornaments. In addition there will be another system of grading, and the higher titled a peeress is the longer it will take her to pass. According to rank the length of the gown is regulated, the trains ranging from one to two yards in accordance with the following officially promulgated order:

Degree.	Length of train.
Baroness.....	One yard
Viscountess.....	One yard and a quarter
Countess.....	One yard and a half
Marchioness.....	One yard and three-quarters
Duchess.....	Two yards

King's and Queen's Robes.

factured. The gold chosen for the king's close pall and stole is clear and bright, and only enough alloy is used to give it the necessary strength. The stole is adorned with the emblems of the empire at home and overseas, including the lotus of India, which was embroidered on King Edward's mantle.

Queen Mary's coronation robe is a most impressive affair of purple velvet, while the train of her coronation gown is of red velvet eighteen yards long and embroidered in gold by the most expert needlewomen in Great Britain. It is lined throughout with white satin.

Reids to Entertain Kings.

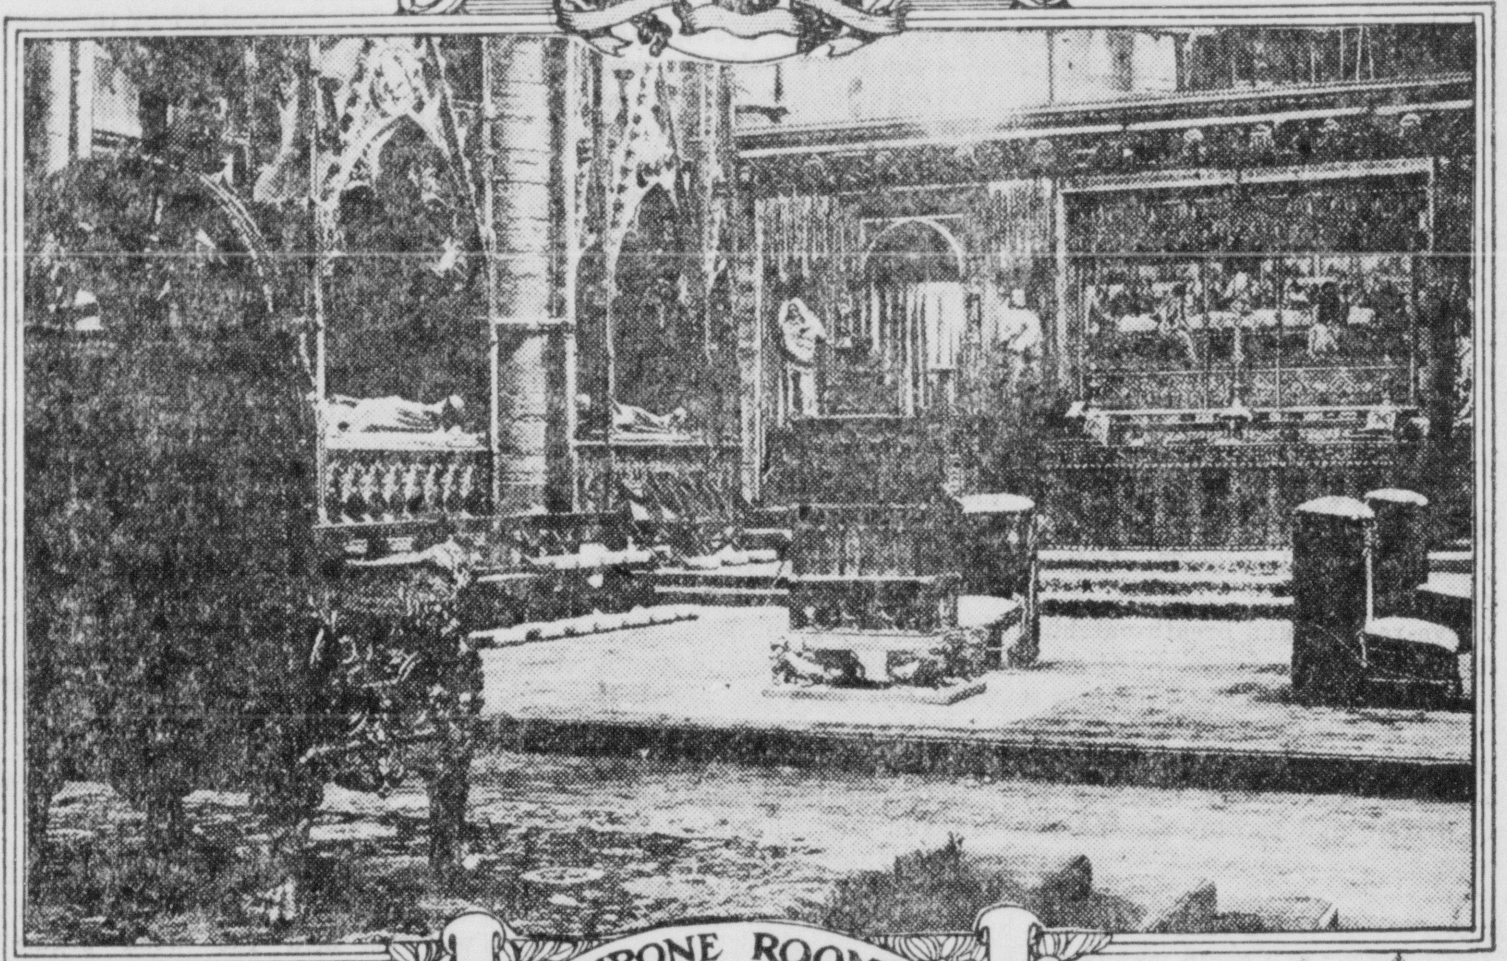

Among other distinguished Americans who will rival or excel the proudest of the British noblemen in the splendor of their hospitality are Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who live in the celebrated Dorchester House and are expected to have as guests not only King George and Queen Mary, but the kings and queens of Spain and Norway.

For many months the preparations

ple, to make the coronation of King George V. and Mary, his queen, even more elaborate than was that of King Edward nine years ago. There was for a brief time a faint inclination upon the part of some of those whose business it is to put the trimmings on the coronation festivities to tone down in some degree the anticipated elaborateness of the affair, but that quickly changed to a determination to make the crowning of the fifth George the very arch and acme of pomp and splendor.

Thus it happens that on the 22d of June, when the king and queen will be crowned in Westminster abbey, the biggest show on earth, the biggest show that ever was on earth, not withstanding the Barnum & Bailey claim, will take place. Only a comparative few will be privileged to witness the actual coronation. About 7,000 persons were jammed into the great hall to see King Edward and Queen Alexandra crowned. It is said that even more will be admitted to the

Coronation of King George and Queen Mary

THE actual coronation and enthronization of King George V. of England and his wife, Queen Mary, June 22 in historic Westminster abbey is but one incident, though of course the most important, in a series of events extending over twelve days. June 19 the visiting royal persons arrive. The king gives them a state banquet in Buckingham palace the next night. The Duke of Connaught gives a state banquet June 21. The day after the coronation their majesties drive through the streets of London. The king and queen witness the great naval review at Spithead June 24. June 26 their majesties attend a gala performance at Covent Garden Opera House. The king holds a great garden party at Buckingham palace on the afternoon of June 27. Next day the king sees the royal agricultural show at Norwich. The lord mayor and sheriffs entertain the king and queen June 29 at luncheon at the Guildhall. June 30 their majesties go to the Crystal palace to greet 100,000 children. The prime minister and Mrs. Asquith give a dinner in honor of the king and queen, who depart July 1 for Windsor castle.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

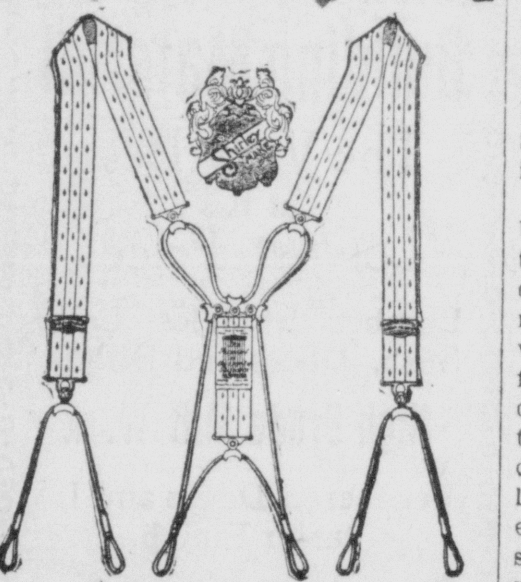

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl." — Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

REYES AIDS TO RESTORE PEACE

Returned Exile Willing to Join With Madero.

THE WORK OF PACIFICATION

This is the Task to Which All Factions in Mexico Now Seem Willing to Set Their Hands—What Acts of Violence Are Now Being Committed Are Due to the Work of Brigands, Madero Says.

El Paso, Tex., May 31.—The declaration of two of his very close friends who are here in conference with Francisco I. Madero, is that General Bernardo Reyes, former Mexican minister of war, is coming back to Mexico to help restore peace. They have returned from Havana, where they conferred with General Reyes in behalf of the independent political party of Mexico, and announced that Reyes would come home at once and join Madero and De La Barra in their work of pacification.

Madero, while continuing his plans for departure Friday, is in constant touch with the national capital. He said on receiving news that forty persons had been killed by a rebel assault on the town of Cholula, near Puebla, in the state of that name, that it was the work of brigands rather than rebels and they would be suppressed. He said his forces in southern Mexico were sufficient to preserve order and that they were at the command of the federal government.

Madero confirmed the report that many of his troops are to be disbanded and many others taken into the regular army of Mexico, both in the rurales and the regular cavalry. He says the legislature of Sonora and Coahuila have installed his governors.

DIAZ DEPARTS

Deposed President Shows No Mark of Recent Suffering.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, May 31.—Porfirio Diaz will leave his country for exile today on board the steamer Ypiranga for Spain, sailing from the same port where thirty-eight years ago he swam the shark-infested waters to escape arrest as a revolutionist. He is accompanied by his wife, his son, his son's wife, and five children, and Senor Elizaga and wife, the latter being the sister of Diaz.

Sixteen consuls, headed by the United States and Canadian representatives, yesterday paid an official visit of respect to the ex-president of the republic at the house of J. B. Body, where he is stopping under the British flag. Diaz received the consuls cordially and expressed appreciation of their visit, but did not allude to his departure. General Diaz was sprightly in conversation and held himself erect. He looked fit, his voice is strong and resonant and there is no mark of his recent suffering on his face. He is still supremely every inch Porfirio Diaz, the man of iron.

He Was in Earnest.

COBB AND MORIARITY ARGUE ON SCORING.

Here's a dialogue which took place on the Detroit bench to show how futile it is for ball players or fans to try to agree with the scorers on hits, errors and stolen bases:

A player hits a liner in left. The outfielder hesitated a fraction of a second, after which he tore in after the ball. It hit his gloved hand about a foot above the ground.

"Hit," said Cobb.

"That was an error," judged Moriarity.

"Why was it?"

"He ought to have had it."

"Nothing of the kind, Morrie. That ball was a bad one and low, and he only got one hand on it anyway."

"He didn't judge it quick, did he? He misjudged it, and he had time to get both hands on it if he had started right away, which he didn't. It's an error with me."

"Well, it goes as a hit here."

Later on a runner tried to steal second. The ball reached the infielder's hand as the runner started his slide for the bag. The infielder dropped the ball.

"Stolen base, that," said Moriarity.

"Error for the second baseman," judged Cobb.

"That wasn't an error. He wouldn't have had him anyway."

"He ought to have had him easy if he had held on to the ball. I make that an error."

"And I stick to the original statement that it's a stolen base."

M'ALEER BOOSTS MILAN.

Manager of Washingtons Says His Outfielder Has No Equal in Big Leagues.

"The greatest outfielder in the country today is Clyde Milan," says Jim McAleer, manager of the Washingtons. "Milan is a real wonder, and I would not trade him for any outfielder in the big leagues. He covers more ground than any man I know of, is a sure catch and does something sensational in almost every game. He hasn't got a weakness. He has made half a dozen seemingly impossible catches this season, catches that no other man in the world would have made. I am proud of Milan and predict that it won't be long before he is classed with the great luminaries of the game. Moreover, he is batting well, and that adds to his value. I wish I had two more outfielders of his caliber. If I had the Nationals would make all the teams step lively to win a game from us."

MARTIN SHERIDAN THROUGH.

Famous Athlete Says He Has Had Last Fling at All Around Title.

Martin Sheridan has announced that he had competed for the last time in the all around championships and that he was content to leave his present world's all around record of 7,385 points for others to shoot at. Martin has not the time nor the inclination to go through another long siege of training necessary to fit himself for an all around championship. He says he still will take an occasional fling at discus throwing, shot putting, weight heaving, standing jumping and events which come easy for him without special preparation. "Never no more," however, for Martin as far as the all around game goes.

Poetess Brings Back Message to Missionaries.

New York, May 31.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the poetess, has returned from a trip around the world with new views concerning the orient. She says most of the residents of the far east dislike missionaries because the missionaries will not admit that there is anything good in Mohammedanism, Buddhism or any of the other religions that flourish in India, China and other oriental countries. Mrs. Wilcox believes that a spirit of conciliation would enable the missionaries to make quicker progress.

The suggestion that the churches hold union Sunday evening services in the city park during the hot summer months is commendable. It affords the churches an opportunity to reach people who never enter a church building. The plan is in accordance with the last command of the Master when he told his disciples to "go" carrying the gospel message to every part of the earth; and every part includes the home field with all its varied conditions as well as the more distant field. The church building should be made the center, but it should never be made the circumference of religious activity. The church must not be content to stand and beckon people to come to it; the church must take its message and "go" to the people. In no other way can it succeed in reaching the large numbers who never attend any church service, and the command to "go" is just as urgent toward our next door neighbor as it is toward the man in another state or in another part of the earth.

The services in the park would appeal to many people who would enjoy attending services in the open air rather than in the overheated buildings in the center of the city; and no more fitting place could be found to tell the story of Jesus and His love for men than in the grove, which has fittingly been called, "God's first temple."

DEATH RODE IN THE BIG RACES

Auto Contest Accompanied By Deadly Smashup.

ONE MECHANICIAN IS KILLED

B. P. Dickson, Who Took Care of the Car of a Chicago Millionaire Racer, Was Crushed to Death When Machine Turned Over—Another Smashup in Which Several Were Badly Injured—Ray Harroun Won Big Race.

Indianapolis, May 31.—The winner of the International 500-mile auto race was Ray Harroun, in a Marmon. When Starter Joe Wagner waved the flag over Harroun as he passed under the wire, thus declaring him victor, the crowd went wild, rushed out on the track, took the driver from the car and carried him about the course on their shoulders.

Ralph Mulford, in a Lozier, was a close second, and Dave Bruce-Brown, in a Fiat, was third. Wishart, in a Mercedes was fourth; De Palma, in a Simplex, fifth; Charles Merz, in a National, sixth; W. M. Turner, in an Amplex, seventh; Harry Cobe, in a Jackson, eighth; Belcher, in a Knox, ninth; Hughie Hughes, in a Mercer, tenth; Lee Frayer, in a Firestone, eleventh, and Gil Anderson, in a Stutz, was twelfth.

The time for the 500 miles was 6:41:8, an average of close to seventy-five miles for the entire race, as figured by the official scorers.

During the last twenty miles of the race, one of the contenders for the leadership was Joe Dawson. Tire trouble caused some delay and he was forced to stop at the pit. A part of the time during the last twenty miles Harroun, Bruce-Brown and Mulford were almost bunched for the lead. Brown and Mulford alternated in getting second and third place, but not once did they head the lightning-like Harroun.

Horde of Morbid Sightseers.

Collision, sudden death, dementia, serious injury and panic were features of the race. Car drivers of national reputation struggled for the aggregate of $40,000 in prizes, and a crowd of 100,000 morbid sightseers sat in the grandstand or sweltered in the sun around the course as the grind continued for more than seven hours.

Notwithstanding the horrors of the day, the race is pronounced to have been a great success and around the hotels and on the streets it is the theme of all conversation. Men and women who came here without securing hotel accommodations and who sat in the parks all night, seemed to regard the privations as more than compensated.

The first accident occurred as the thirtieth mile of the race was being turned by Arthur Greiner in an Amplex, both rear tires exploding at the same instant. The car skidded twenty-five feet, both rear wheels were torn off and the car turned over, crushing S. P. Dickson, the mechanic, to death under the wreckage and throwing Greiner some distance on the brick pavement. He was taken to the hospital and was found to be seriously injured, though the doctors reported that there were no fractures. Greiner is a millionaire from Chicago, and Dickson is the son of a Chicago newspaper man.

Thrilling Incident of Race.

The most sensational accident of the day occurred in front of the grandstand when four cars were wrecked and Harry Knight and John Glover were injured. The Case machine coming down the home stretch, carrying Jagersburger and his mechanic, L. Anderson, broke a steering knuckle and crashed into the cement wall. The car rebounded to the center of the track with crushed wheels, and Anderson fell directly in the roadway. Starter Wagner made an effort to flag the racers that followed, but he could do little more than check their speed. Harry Knight in his Westcott, who was the closest to the wrecked machine, turned out toward the judge's stand to avoid striking the prostrate mechanic, and his car skidded sideways at great speed. At the pits, near the south end, were Lytle's car and Eddie Hearne's Fiat, which had stopped because of tire trouble. Knight's car crashed into them with such terrific force that both machines were dragged along to the roadway opposite the gate.

The impact caused the Westcott to turn over, throwing Knight and his mechanic, Glover, some distance. In the meantime Wagner was risking his life in the center of the track checking the flyers. However, when it was seen that all the wrecked cars were free of the course, he waved the others ahead and the drivers were once more tearing around like mad, trying to make up for the time lost.

Any number of small accidents in which human life was at stake were passed almost unnoticed, several occurring on the south turn below the judges' stand. In several instances during the day tires were thrown, causing great danger to other machines. In two cases, people in the grandstand saw tires thrown and the car strike the cement retaining wall, only to glide back down the incline and continue on the rims.

PERSONAL ARGUMENT FAVORS ARBITRATION

President Taft Quietly Explodes Roosevelt View.

Washington, May 31.—The subject of President Taft's Memorial day address at the Arlington national cemetery was "National restraint." Many thought they discovered in a portion of the address an answer to the recent attack of Theodore Roosevelt upon the Taft plan of international arbitration. Roosevelt in his editorial on arbitration presented the case of a man whose wife had been slapped and asked whether the man could be asked to remain peaceful. He drew a parallel of a nation suffering an insult at the hands of another nation.

President Taft also reduced his discussion to the case of the individual. He instanced the days of duelling, observing that then it required more moral strength to refrain from duelling than to fight one. He added:

"If that be true of men, why may it not be true in the near future of nations? Why will it not show more patriotism and more love of country to refuse to go to war for an insult and to submit it to the arbitrament of a peaceful tribunal than to subject a whole people to the misery and cruelty and suffering and burden of heavy cost of a national war, however glossed over by the excitement and ambitions and the glory of a successful conquest?"

Bogart, first vice president of the United Wireless Telegraph company, who pleaded guilty a week after the trial of President Wilson and the other defendants got under way, escaped with a fine of $2,500. Man a Working Machine.

Man of today is as near a machine as he probably ever can become, and still exist. To keep him in perfect "running order" he has to be treated as such. Now, if your watch or auto had slipped a cog, or was "clogged up" with foreign matter threatening its very existence unless removed, would you apply acid or dope to rid it of foreign matter or to adjust its parts?

—As With Auto and Watch—so with the human body, it gets out of running order through the process of life and needs repairing. No defective machine can turn out good work. Every day that an "unclean" watch or auto, or any other machine is compelled to run, wears seriously its vital parts and saps its vitality. The longer you try to work while the body machinery is out of gear, the greater will be the damage it suffers. Health depends upon the human machine being kept in good mechanical order. Adjustment of the human body is the particular and special work of

CHAPTER XXIII.

"I REMEMBERED THE ROOM."

AS Carmel's gaze passed from her brother's face it traveled slowly and with glowing hesitation over the countenances of those near her, on and on past the judge, past the jury until they reached the spot where I sat. There they seemed to falter, and the beating of my heart became so loud that I instinctively shrank away from my neighbor. By so doing I drew her eye, which fell full upon mine for one overwhelming minute; then she shrank and looked away, but not before the color had risen in a flood to her cheek.

The hope which had sprung to life under her first beautiful aspect vanished at sight of this flush, for it was not one of joy or surprise or even of unconscious sympathy. It was the banner of a deep, unendurable shame. But in a few minutes her features settled into a strange placidity, undisturbed by the leveled gaze of a hundred eyes. Her whole attention was concentrated on her brother and wavered only when the duties of the occasion demanded a recognition of the various gentlemen concerned in the trial.

Mr. Moffat prefaced his examination by the following words:

"May I please your honor, I wish to ask the indulgence of the court in my examination of this witness. She is just recovering from a long and dangerous illness, and, while I shall endeavor to keep within the rules of examination, I shall be grateful for any consideration which may be shown her by your honor and by the counsel on the other side."

Mr. Fox at once rose. He had by this time recovered from his astonishment at seeing before him and in a fair state of health the young girl whom he had every reason to believe to be still in a condition of partial forgetfulness at Lakewood and under the care of a woman entirely in his confidence and under his express orders. He had also mastered his chagrin at the triumph which her presence here and under these dramatic circumstances had given his adversary. He expressed in warm tones his deep desire to extend every possible indulgence.

Mr. Moffat bowed his acknowledgments and waited for his witness to take the oath, which she did with a simple grace which touched all hearts, even that of her constrained and unreconciled brother. Compelled by the silence and my own bounding pulses to look at her in my own despite, I caught the sweet and elevated look with which she laid her hand on the book and asked myself if her presence here was not a self accusation which would bring satisfaction to nobody, which would sink her and hers into an ignominy worse than the conviction of the brother whom she was supposedly there to save.

Tortured by this fear, I awaited events in indescribable agitation.

The cool voice of Mr. Moffat broke in upon my gloom. Carmel had resettled herself after taking the oath, and the customary question could be heard: "Your name, if you please."

"Carmel Cumberland."

"Do you recognize the prisoner, Miss Cumberland?"

"Yes; he is my brother."

A thrill ran through the room. The lingering tone, the tender accent, told some of the feeling she thus expressed seemed to pass into every heart which contemplated the two. From this moment on he was looked upon with less harshness. People showed a disposition to discern innocence where perhaps they had secretly desired until now to discover guilt.

"Miss Cumberland, will you be good enough to tell us where you were at or near the hour of 10 on the evening of your sister's death?"

"I was in the clubhouse—in the house you call the Whispering Pines."

At this astounding reply, unexpected

by every one present save myself and the unhappy prisoner, incredulity, seasoned with amazement, marked every countenance. Carmel Cumberland in the clubhouse that night—she who had been found at a late hour in her own home, injured and unconscious! It was not to be believed, or it would not have been if Arthur, with less self control than he had hitherto maintained, had not shown by his morose air and the silent drooping of his head that he accepted this statement, wild and improbable as it seemed. Mr. Fox started to rise at her words; but, noting the prisoner's attitude, he hastily re-seated himself, realizing, perhaps, that evidence of which he had never dreamed lay at the bottom of the client's manner and the counsel's complacency.

Mr. Moffat, who saw everything, smiled slightly as he spoke encouragingly to his witness and propounded his next question:

"Miss Cumberland, was your sister with you when you went to the clubhouse?"

"No; we went separately."

"How? Will you explain?"

"I drove there. I don't know how Adelaide went."

"You drove there?"

"Yes. I had Arthur harness up his horse for me, and I drove there."

A moment of silence, then a slow awakening on the part of judge, jury and prosecution to the fact that the case was taking a turn for which they were ill prepared. To Mr. Moffat it was a moment of intense self congratulation, and something of the gratification he felt crept into his voice as he said:

"Miss Cumberland, will you describe this horse?"

"It was a gray horse. It has a large black spot on its left shoulder."

"To what vehicle was it attached?"

"To a cutter—my brother's cutter."

"Was that brother with you? Did he accompany you in your ride to the Whispering Pines?"

"No. I went quite alone."

Entrancement had now seized upon every mind. Even if her testimony were not true, but merely the wanderings of a mind not fully restored, the interest of it was intense.

"And how did you return? With whom and by what means did you regain your own house?"

The answer came with simple directness:

"In the same way I went. I drove back in my brother's cutter, and, being all alone, just as before, I put the horse away myself and went into my empty home and up to Adelaide's room, where I lost consciousness."

"Miss Cumberland, do you often ride out alone on nights like that?"

"I never did before. I would not have dared to do it then if I had not taken a certain precaution."

"And what was this precaution?"

"I wore an old coat of my brother's over my dress and one of his hats on my head."

It was out—the fact for the suppression of which I had suffered arrest without a word, because of which Arthur had gone even further and submitted to trial with the same constancy. Instinctively his eyes and mine met, and at that moment there was established between us an understanding that was in strong contrast to the surrounding turmoil, which now exceeded all limits, as the highly wrought up spectators realized that these statements, if corroborated, destroyed one of the strongest points which had been made by the prosecution. This caused a stay in the proceedings until order was partially restored, and the judge's voice could be heard in a warning that the courtroom would be cleared of all spectators if this break of decorum was repeated.

"Miss Cumberland, will you now give the jury the full particulars of that evening's occurrences as witnessed by yourself? Begin your relation, if you please, with an account of the last meal you had together," said Mr. Moffat when the trial was resumed.

Carmel hesitated. Her youth—her conscience, perhaps—shrank in manifest distress from this inquisition.

"Ask me a question," she prayed.

"I do not know how to begin."

"Very well. Who were seated at the dinner table that night?"

"My sister, my brother, Mr. Ranelagh and myself."

"Did anything uncommon happen during the meal?"

"Yes; my sister ordered wine and had our glasses all filled. She never drank wine herself, but she had her glass filled also. Then she dismissed Helen, the waitress, and when the girl was gone she rose and held up her glass and invited us to do the same."

"We will drink to my coming marriage," said she, but when we had done this she turned upon Arthur, and, declaring that another bottle of wine should never be opened again in the house, unclosed her fingers and let her glass drop on the table, where it broke. Arthur then let his fall and I mine. We all three let our glasses fall and break."

"And Mr. Ranelagh?"

"He did not let his fall. He set it down on the cloth. He had not drunk from it."

Clear, perfectly clear, tallying with what we had heard from other sources.

"Miss Cumberland, where were you looking when you let your glass fall?"

My heart gave a bound. I remembered that moment well. So did she, as could be seen from the tremulous flush and the determination with which she forced herself to speak.

"At Mr. Ranelagh," she answered finally.

"Not at your brother?"

"No."

"And at whom was Mr. Ranelagh looking?"

"At—at me."

"Not at your sister?"

"No."

"Was anything said?"

"Not then. With the dropping of the glasses we all drew back from the table and walked toward a little room where we sometimes sat before going into the library. Arthur went first, and Mr. Ranelagh and I followed, Adelaide coming last. We—we went this way into the little room and—what other question do you wish to ask?" she finished, with a burning blush.

Mr. Moffat was equal to the appeal. "Did anything happen? Did Mr. Ranelagh speak to you or you to him, or did your sister Adelaide speak?"

"No one spoke, but Mr. Ranelagh put a little slip of paper into my hand—a note. As he did this my brother looked round. I don't know whether he saw the note or not, but his eye caught mine, and I may have blushed. Next moment he was looking past me, and presently he flung himself out of the room and I heard him going upstairs. Adelaide had joined me by this time, and Mr. Ranelagh turned to speak to her, and—I went over to the bookshelves to read my note."

"And did you read it then?"

"No; I was afraid. I waited till Mr. Ranelagh was gone, then I went up to my room and read it. It was not a—a note to be glad of—I mean, proud of. I'm afraid I was a little glad of it at first. I was a wicked girl."

"Miss Cumberland, before you tell us about this note will you be good enough to inform us whether any 'I WAS A WICKED GIRL' words passed between you and your sister before you went upstairs?"

"Oh, yes; we talked. We all three talked, but it was about indifferent matters. The servants were going to a ball, and we spoke of that. Mr. Ranelagh did not stay long. Very soon he remarked that he had a busy evening before him and took his leave. I was not in the room with them when he did this. I was in the adjoining one, but I heard his remark and saw him go. I did not wait to talk to Adelaide."

"Now, about the note?"

"I read it as soon as I reached my room. Then I sat still for a long time."

"Miss Cumberland, pardon my request, but will you tell us what was in that note?"

She lifted her patient eyes and looked straight at her brother. He did not meet her gaze, but the dull flush which lit up the dead white of his cheek showed how he suffered under this ordeal. At me she never glanced.

"I do not remember the words," she said finally as her eyes fell again to her lap. "But I remember its meaning. It was an invitation for me to leave town with him that very evening and be married at some place he mentioned. He said it would be the best way to—end—matters."

BOY STOLEN BY GYPSIES DIES IN AN ASYLUM.

Two Years With Nomads Wrecked Mind and Health of the Lad.

Broken in mind and health as a result of treatment received in two years of captivity by a band of gypsies, Leonard Allen, the sixteen-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Allen, is dead at Middletown, N. Y., after three years of illness and suffering.

In August, 1906, when the boy was twelve years old, he went to a pond with four companions. The other boys went for a swim, and while young Allen was waiting for them to come out of the water he wandered off into the woods looking for berries. His companions did not miss him until they left the water and even then thought he had gone home without them.

That was the last seen of the little fellow for two years, and, although in all that time his mother spared neither money nor effort in searching for him, not a single clew was found.

It was not until March, 1909, that the police of Fall River, Mass., acting on a mere chance bit of evidence, discovered the lad with gypsies camping near that city.

A passenger in a trolley car on the outskirts of the city heard a child screaming and, looking to see where the sound came from, caught a glimpse of a hollow eyed, frightened boy running from a man. He left the car and tried to follow them, arriving at the gypsy camp. He immediately reported to the police that a boy was being mistreated. Police, bearing in mind the disappearance of Allen, made a raid and rescued the boy. Two gypsies were arrested and convicted.

His mother, happy almost to the point of breaking down, took him home and began to build up the little fellow's health. Two months after he was returned to his mother the little fellow became a raving maniac. While he was in the kitchen watching his mother at work he suddenly snatched a large carving knife and threatened to kill her. So weak was he that she was able to take it from him. He was sent to an asylum.

S.S.S.

CURES OLD SORES

The news value of any advertisement depends entirely on its truthfulness and common sense. Based upon these two facts we hope to make this short talk of special interest to all persons who are afflicted with an old sore or chronic ulcer. If in presenting the merits of S.S.S. as a cure for these troubles, our line of reasoning appeals to you, it will be an easy matter to prove the truthfulness of our statements by sending you a free book containing many testimonials from persons in every part of the country who have been cured of an old sore or chronic ulcer by the use of S.S.S.

Whenever a sore or ulcer becomes chronic or refuses to heal, it is because of bad blood; the healing qualities of the circulation have been weakened by impurities or poisons in this vital fluid.

The blood is the great source of nourishment for all flesh tissues. As it constantly circulates throughout the system it carries the necessary nutrient properties to every portion of the body. It is because of this continual replenishment that the flesh remains firm and healthy and free from disease. Since the blood exercises such an important and necessary function we can easily understand why impurities or poisons in this vital fluid so often infect and disease the flesh at some particular spot, and by continually discharging impurities into it cause the formation of old sores or chronic ulcers.

Every symptom of an old sore suggests diseased blood. The inflammation, discharge, discolored flesh, and the fact that external applications never have any curative effect on these places, show that deep down in the circulation there is a morbid cause that prevents the place from healing. But more convincing proof that bad blood is responsible for old sores is furnished by the fact that even removing every visible trace of the ulcer by surgical operation, does not cure. THEY ALWAYS RETURN.

Only by cleansing the blood of the poisonous cause can an old sore be cured. S.S.S. heals them by going down into the circulation and removing the cause from the blood. When this has been done there is no longer left any inflammatory impurity or infectious matter to irritate the place, and nature causes the natural and permanent healing of the ulcer. When S.S.S. has purified the blood and the place is once more nourished with pure, rich blood, then every symptom disappears, and it is not a surface cure, but the place is firmly and solidly healed from the bottom to the outer skin. S.S.S. is recognized as the greatest of all blood purifiers, and therein lies its ability to cure old sores. It is purely vegetable, containing no mineral in any form, and its fine tonic effects are always helpful in overcoming the impure systemic effects of an old sore. Forty years of cures is the record of S.S.S., and what it has done in thousands of cases we feel perfectly safe in saying it will do in your case if you are afflicted with an old sore.

We have a special treatise on Old Sores which we will be glad to send free to all who desire it. It contains the statements of many witnesses as to the efficacy of S.S.S., some of whom you may know. We will also be glad to send free any special medical advice you desire.

Attractive Dress for Early Spring

Furnished by Pictorial Review
The Pictorial Review Bldg.

222-224-226 West 39th Street, New York City.

When coats and furs have become too warm women turn for relief to light-colored dresses. These are generally made in one piece. Sleeves in one with body is a style having wide vogue, while dresses usually have under-sleeves of lace. Lace yokes are almost universal for these waists. Venise, cluny, filet and baby Irish being most popular.

Many beautiful and artistic sashes, girdles, bows and rosettes are made of handsome brocaded silks and satins as well as pretty ribbons. The long looped sash gives an effect of slenderness and height to the figure. The shirred buckle is a clever and fanciful conceit and another charming idea is the water-lily made of two shades of silk with a pretty center threaded with silver or gold. A cord with long tasselled ends is a suitable finish where the high waistline joins the blouse.

Some form of a panel is a noticeable feature of these frocks, though in each dress it may be slightly different. These panels emphasize the long lines and slenderness of the figure. Over-skirts in the crossed-over drapery styles are fashionable, and some very attractive results are produced in fine wool, cotton voile, marquisette and foulard. These fabrics are not only in the front ranks of favored materials but withstand much service. Noile is used more now than it has been for sometime and comes in beautiful colors, plain, striped and with borders.

The new styles for spring are characterized by their simple lines and need very little trimming, because the materials in use are so fascinating in their beauty and supple quality. It seems that fabrics are made softer, lighter and more clinging each season. Pongee, tussah and the various forms of rough silk are substantial materials for street and afternoon costumes, and are trimmed with guipure, cluny or other heavy lace in the natural color. A very good effect is procured by introducing a note of contrast such as emerald green, cerise, royal blue or black.

Both the natural and high waistline are enjoying a divided popularity. The Empire lines are graceful and coquettish and have come back in a more decided form than ever, yet the natural waistline in its turn has excellent qualities. The stout woman prefers the latter.

The new Eton effect is shown in many dresses and gives a certain smart effect to the figure that is becoming to most women. PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3881 combines most of the salient features of this season's styles—namely, the Eton effect, the natural waistline, the panel in front and in back, the sleeve in one with the body and the lace yoke and cuffs. It is an admirable model and its chief charm lies in its being adaptable to both the stout and slender woman. Its sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 10½ yards of 23 inch material.

PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3901 shows a ladies' costume without lining having high, round or square neck and a high waistline. The attached three-piece tucked skirt is in regulation length. Sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure, and size 36 requires 6½ yards of 44 inch material.

Patterns for these models, including cutting and construction guides are 15 cents each number.

RECTOR TO GO ON STAGE.

Leaves Ministry Because He Believes He's More Fitted For Actor.

The Rev. F. S. Carroll, assistant rector of the Church of the Ascension, one of Washington's fashionable Episcopal churches, has announced that he intends to go on the stage. Mr. Carroll is a collateral descendant of Bishop Carroll, the first Catholic bishop of America, and of the Carrolls of Carrollton, Md. He was born in Baltimore and is the son of Duddington Carroll, a famous globe trotter. While residing in Spain at the age of five years young Carroll was placed under the care of Jesuits who prepared him for college.

"I have thought for some time of leaving my place in the ministry," said Mr. Carroll. "The only reason I have is that I do not consider the church to be my proper vocation. I shall follow the theatrical profession. Drama, I hope, is the branch I will finally arrive in. If I am not successful in the theatrical business I may drive a cart."

Mr. Carroll is twenty-nine years of age and has been connected with the Church of the Ascension for nearly a year. His present plan is to enter a local school of acting and prepare himself for the stage.

How He Defined Woman.

Father and son were walking the streets and passed a large park in which were many statues. One of them—the largest of all—was of a woman.

"Father, what is that?" asked the son, pointing to this particular one, which was inscribed "Woman."

"That is not a statue, my son," answered the father. "It is but a figure of speech."—Life.

A Queer Sight In Holland.

One of the queerest sights which I saw in Europe was a row of wooden shoes outside the door of a Dutch farmhouse on Saturday morning. There were the big sized shoes of the farmer himself, the middle sized shoes of his good vnaow and several small sized shoes of the children, and all the line had been scrubbed and freshly whitewashed in preparation for Sunday.—"Old Stories of Holland."

A Father's Vengeance

would have fallen on any one who attacked the son of Peter Bondy, of South Rockwood, Mich., but he was powerless before attacks of Kidney trouble. "Doctors could not help him," he wrote, "so at last we gave him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. Its the best Kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, Tired feeling, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, warn of Kidney trouble that may end in dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Beware! Take Electric Bitters and be safe. His peculiar actions attracted the attention of many people and several complaints were sent into police headquarters. He was driving aimlessly about the city and several who talked with him, were convinced that he did not know exactly what he was doing. He stopped at several places where he was not acquainted and made himself very much at home. He finally left his buggy and took a seat on the veranda of a residence on South Walnut street and remained there for some time. To Marshal Abell he said his family did not want him at home, but he did not seem to have any particular destination in driving through the country.
